

GQ and Saks to Host Care Resource Event Magazine Promises to Bring Pages to Life

GQ and Saks Fifth Avenue have joined together for a fashion show to benefit Care Resource on Thursday, November 1, 2001, in the men's department at Saks Fifth Avenue, Bal Harbour, 9700 Collins Avenue, Bal Harbour from 7-9 pm.

GQ Live promises to bring the pages of GQ magazine to life with a fashion show, music, and local celebrity models. Margo Donohue, Senior Publicist for GQ Magazine explains, "GQ has wanted to put something together with Saks for some time. This was the perfect venue."

Donohue says, "GQ believes in having a charity component built into events and shows and wanted to do something the benefit the area." It was the staff of GQ that chose Care Resource as its charity component.

Saks Fifth Avenue Bal Harbour opens its doors in the evening hours for this exclusive event featuring men's spring fashion trends. GQ Live will transform editorial features into fashion presentations of the season's newest items, cooking demonstrations of Guy Food and the Personal Best spa area where guests can sample the newest grooming products.

All who attend can enter to win a prize package that includes a $1000 wardrobe selected with the assistance of a GQ style expert, the opportunity to have their photo featured in the Aramis advertisement in the March 2002 issue of GQ and a visit to a salon.

Tickets are $35.00 and all proceeds go to Care Resource. To RSVP for GQ Live call 305.667.9296, extension 17.

Care Resource is a 501(c)3 not-for-profit multicultural community-based organization dedicated to providing counseling, clients support services, primary medical care, clinical trials, information and referrals, community outreach and education in response to HIV spectrum illness in diverse communities.

Progressive Action Group Endorses Candidates in Miami and Miami Beach

By Ian Drew

SAVE Dade ActionPAC, a political action committee serving to support fair-minded candidates who will work to pass and defend legislation guaranteeing equal treatment under the law for all, including people who are gay, lesbian, bisexual, or transgender, held a press conference on National Coming Out Day (Thursday, October 11, 2001).

At the press conference, the South Florida based group announced its endorsements for the City of Miami Mayor and the City of Miami Beach Mayor and Commission Seats.

The conference was held at the American Legion in Miami.

The group now promises to support the candidates through financial support, volunteer supplication, and supportive advertising.

Selection panels were composed of volunteers from the cities of 26 participating candidates.

Jorge Mursull, Executive Director of Save, commented, "The endorsement of candidates is another way for us to let our constituents know whom we believe can best help us move forward."

The announced endorsements were: Manny Diaz for Mayor of the City of Miami - Diaz was selected partially based on his involvement in SALAD, CHAW, and other organizations.

Elaine Bloom for Mayor of the City of Miami Beach - Bloom is a favorite due to her overall support of the LGBT community in the past.

Jose Smith for City of Miami Beach Commission Group I - Smith has been endorsed by the group in the past.

Saul Gross for City of Miami Beach Commission Group II - Gross is known as a consensus builder with strong support.

And a co-endorsement of Bernie Navarro and Richard Steinberg for City of Miami Beach Commission Group III - Both candidates are known supporters of GLBT issues.
